A large white hot tub is the central focus, situated on a dark-stained wooden deck. The hot tub is rectangular with rounded corners and has several jets visible. To the left of the hot tub, there are blue lounge chairs and a large patio umbrella. The deck is bordered by a wooden fence, and beyond that, there are lush green trees and a lawn. The scene is brightly lit, suggesting a sunny day.

For an Extraordinary Life.

Our innovative approach to finding better ways to design the definitive swimspa has led to our use of a special closed cell insulation, which repels moisture as it retains its insulating values and helps deliver one of the lowest average operating costs available. Our wider safety access steps and flat stepping areas at both the jet and seating end of the swimspas is functional and aesthetically pleasing. The simple fact that SwimLife Swimspas accommodate more functionality than similar-sized competitive models.

SwimLife Swimspas Circuit Training System

Aquatic Circuit Training is a fast-paced set of exercises in which you do one exercise for 30 seconds to 3 minutes and then move on to the next exercise. You begin at a station (a place where a specific exercise is done), and when you complete it, you move to the next station (next exercise). We have developed circuits that alternate between aerobic activity (like stepping or stationary jogging) with strength building exercises (using resistance bands).

What aquatic circuit training provides:

- Increases your aerobic & strength levels
- Burns more calories than other forms of exercise.
- If you are circuit training, do an additional 20 minutes of straight aerobic exercise at least three days a week.
